Humor About

the Weather How About It?

If you're interested in the mechanics of how a daily column gets itself written I'll state the threadbare items we begin with — and then put them together.

Item One: There's been an abrupt change in the weather.

Item Two: Hope man went out to look at the mercury and couldn't even find the thermometer.

Item Three: Trade magazine says humor in newspaper weather stories isn't funny — any more.

Well, it used to be funny — and the weather still is.

Hope folks were sitting around fanning themselves all Sunday afternoon in 80-degree weather; came nightfall and the mercury dipped 10 degrees an hour. The same thing happened last week. An L. & N. railroad man scheduled to make the run back to Shreveport in several hours asked a cafe-operator friend of his to put a thermometer outside and keep an eye on it. The cafe man propped up his thermometer on the window-ledge on Third street — but when he went to look at the mercury he couldn't find it. Apparently the thermometer had walked up Third street in the pocket of some other worried railroad worker who had to leave on an earlier train and couldn't wait.

Editor & Publisher, our national newspaper magazine, takes a poke at humor in the weather news.

Says E. & P.: "A small daily in the East carried this in a front-page 'car': 'Don't go out in a bathing suit tonight, but you might squeeze through tomorrow. Quite a change from the week-end.'"

"Now this is winter time, and I just flew in from Timbuctu. Did the character who wrote that mean it had been warm enough to wear a bathing suit over the week-end or that it would be warm enough tomorrow?"

What the magazine is criticizing, of course, is the rewriting of the sober and industrious text of the official government forecast.

The Star happens to print the official text "as is" — straight and flat reporting. But even that is factually funny half the time.

Didn't I report in this column a month ago that America's greatest scientists gathered in solemn convention in New York had declared that their researchers found ancient folklore and childhood jingles about the weather were more accurate than the government's own map-makers, gauge-watchers and balloon-blowers?

If weather humor leaves you cold — maybe you are. . .

U. S. Chiefs to Discuss Spread of Communism

Tokyo, Jan. 30 — (AP) — The American joint chiefs of staff are due in Tokyo Wednesday for their first personal conferences with field commanders who long have been concerned by the spreading Red flood in Asia.

The joint chiefs will be told that the American military position in the Far East should be strengthened.

General MacArthur and his aides and top naval officers are expected to stress these points before the chiefs of staff leave Japan Saturday.

1. Formosa is of such strategic importance that some American gesture — short of sending troops or becoming involved in war — would be made to prevent its capture by the Chinese Communists.

2. The Old Japanese naval base of Yokosuka near Tokyo should be built into America's leading Far Eastern naval installation. This would involve guarantees that it could be used indefinitely. Officers say the present installations would cost $600,000,000 to duplicate.

3. Key American air bases in Japan also should be secured by a formal agreement paralleling any Japanese peace treaty.

4. Naval forces in the Far East should be increased by additional aircraft carriers and support ships. Army and air power should be expanded beyond their present minimum strength.

George Brown's Home Damaged by Fire

George Brown's home on West Third street caught fire about 3 a.m. today and two rooms were considerably damaged along with some clothes, the Hope Fire Department announced today.

The blaze is believed to have caught from faulty wiring. There was no immediate estimate of loss. Mr. Brown was not at home at the time.

Secrecy Shrouds Atomic Energy Conference

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP) — Behind a tight secrecy curtain drawn by the state department, representatives of the United States, Belgium and Britain meet here today to talk about atomic energy.

Apparently authoritative information is that they want to discuss:

1. A possible increase in the $200 to $300 per ton price which the United States pays Belgium for the bulk of uranium produced in the Belgian Congo.

2. Detailed arrangements for division of the Congo's uranium output between the United States and Britain, with virtually all of it coming to this country.

Since the talks deal with uranium — used in making present day A-bombs — there is no apparent connection with a possible superbomb powered with hydrogen.

Various developments over the week-end indicated that President Truman may be near a grave decision on whether to building the H-bomb, and that he may rule in favor of it.

In Chicago, atomic scientist Harrison C. Brown said Russia may be ahead of America in building a hydrogen bomb. He added that the American public should rule on whether the U. S. makes such a bomb, "in full knowledge and understanding of the facts and terrible potentialities."

That contrasted with a statement by Rep. Elston (R-Ohio), a member of the senate-house atomic committee, who told a reporter this country is "far ahead" of Russia in atomic development.

China Reds Say American Is a Spy

San Francisco, Jan. 30 — (AP) — Communist China's radio today charged Douglas S. MacKiernan of Stoughton, Mass., American vice consul in Sinkiang province, "has been exposed as an espionage agent."

The Red radio said three White Russian confederates surrendered. It said they named MacKiernan as a hard riding spy who sought to organize the bandits of the Far Western Chinese province where Russia has special privileges.

Trying to Be a Comedian Is Tough Work — It Depends Entirely on Your Writers

BY HAL BOYLE

New York (AP) — Would you like to be a top comedy writer and make $1,000 a week?

It is very simple. All you have to do is think up jokes — funny jokes, by the hundreds.

However, jokes are much like people. They are very perishable. "Strangers are always mailing me a joke and asking me to pay them if I use it," said Edgar Bergen, the radio ventriloquist.

"Usually the joke is old. But even if it were new — who wants to buy jokes one at a time?"

His famous wooden-head dummies — Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd — burn up jokes like they were giveaway matches.

And Bergen gave this insight into the tense problem of getting laugh material for a half-hour program: "I work with three writers. First we agree on a comedy situation. Then we write as many jokes around it as we can. Usually we get between 700 and 800."

"We trim these down to 300, then we go on pruning until we end up with the 80 or 90 jokes we actually will use on the program."

For 12 years Bergen has dealt with this problem of creating three laughs for every minute he is on the air. Oddly enough, he retains a sense of humor about it.

Originally, he wrote all his own material. But in time — like Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Milton Berle and other popular comedians — had to holler for help.

Unlike some laugh merchants Bergen has a vast and vocal respect for his writers.

"A guy who can write comedy has a real future today," he said. "And there is no unemployment problem. There are no $2,000 a week comedy writers sitting waiting for a call. They are all working."

He means those who can keep steadily shucking fresh jokes week after week and month after month and year after year.

"It's the writer who makes a program classy or trashy," he said.

Polio Drive Extended One Week

Only $937.14 has been reported collected in Hempstead county to date on a quota of $4,000. We must come closer to our goal as $4,500 was spent in Hempstead county alone in 1949. In order to do this, it has been decided to extend the drive another week and give those who have not contributed to the March of Dimes a chance to do so.

The people of Hempstead county will not turn their backs on the stricken children or refuse hospitalization to other victims if they know the facts. Mail your contributions to: March of Dimes, Box 417 Hope, Arkansas today.

'All King's Men' Takes Picture Award

Hollywood, Jan. 30 — (AP) — "All The King's Men" wins an Associated Press poll of 30 top Hollywood correspondents on the question, "what do you think was the best movie of 1949?"

The picture received 28 1-2 votes. (A few correspondents split the vote between two pictures.) Next came "Twelve O'Clock High," with 7 1-2, and "The Heiress," with 7.

Preponderant choices for best-acting honors in the poll are: Starring actor: Broderick Crawford in "All The King's Men," 34 votes. He was followed by Richard Todd in "The Hasty Heart," 12, and Kirk Douglas in "Champion," 11.

Starring actress: Olivia de Havilland in "The Heiress," 40 votes. Next were Susan Hayward in "My Foolish Heart," 12, and Deborah Kerr in "I'd Rather Be True," 10.

Supporting actor: Dean Jagger in "Twelve O'Clock High," 26 votes. Closest competition was from Ralph Richardson in "The Heiress," 13 votes, and James Whitmore in "Battle Ground," 10. Richardson also received five starring-actor votes.

Supporting actress: Mercedes McCambridge in "All The King's Men," 49 votes. Following her were Ethel Waters in "Pinky," 6, and Judy Holliday in "Adam's Rib," 3.

The poll, the first of its kind ever made here, may be a forecast of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences awards March 23.

Eight of the 80 correspondents said they didn't see enough pictures last year to form opinions.

The ice was broken in Hempstead's political picture today with Miss Lucille Ruggles, 27, of Shover Springs, announcing as a candidate for the office of county treasurer.

Miss Ruggles is the first candidate to officially announce. Her statement follows:

"After careful consideration and being influenced by many friends, I have fully decided to announce my candidacy for the office of Hempstead County Treasurer subject to the Democratic Primary Election."

I was born and raised in this county, and an honor graduate of Hope High school. As many of you know, just two months after graduation, I was stricken with paralysis. Since then I have been living, studying and hoping that I could some day seek this public office and serve my friends, but I did not want to announce until I was confident that I was fully qualified to serve you in a competent manner. Now I feel that I am qualified, and I promise to work diligently to take care of the duties of this office.

I truly appreciate the many expressions of encouragement that I have received, and I hope that I may have the pleasure of serving you."

Arkansas May Be First 'Party Harmony' Stop

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP) — The Democratic national committee may next arrange a series of state meetings in the South, accenting "harmony" and omitting talk of the touchy civil rights issue. And Arkansas may be the site of the next one.

The southern regional Democratic conference at Raleigh, N. C., Saturday, established the pattern which some of President Truman's Dixie supporters want to pursue on a state-by-state basis.

It featured tales by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, Under Secretary of State Webb, budget Director Frank Pace and wound up with a Jackson-Jefferson dinner talk by Vice President Barkley.

National Chairman Bill Boyle said today that recommendations for state meetings are under study. He told a reporter he personally liked the idea.

Gov. James E. Folsom of Alabama, one of the three governors who showed up at Raleigh, is talking of holding a state rally at Birmingham to climax a series of county meetings of Truman supporters in the state.

Some of President Truman's advisors favor an early rally in Arkansas, where the President has the warm support of Gov. Sidney S. McMath.

McMath, Folsom and Gov. Kerr Scott of North Carolina took turns presiding at sessions of the Raleigh rally.

Invitations went out to ten other governors of the southern and border states, but the others gave excuses, such as being too busy with legislatures in session. There were lots of other absentees to whom invitations had been sent.

However, Jonathan Daniels, who presided, called the conference a success both from the standpoint of harmony and organization. Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, is Democratic national committeeman for North Carolina.

None of the speakers, including Barkley, made any reference to the controversy over a fair employment practices bill, anti-lynching legislation or other civil rights proposals. This issue cost Mr. Truman four southern states in 1948, while it was credited with helping him in northern states.

The three governors who did attend told reporters that the states rights movement is weaker today than in 1948.

No invitations went out to known states rights. Daniels took the position that they are members of another party.

To Explain New Farm Program

T. E. Atkinson, economist and Farm programs analyst, will discuss individual farm opportunities and explain provisions of the new long-range farm program to farmers at the Hope City hall municipal tomorrow morning, Tuesday, at 10 o'clock.

Mr. Atkinson is Extension economist of the University of Arkansas college of agriculture at Fayetteville. His duties require extensive study of governmental farm programs and their use by Arkansas farmers.

The Agricultural Act of 1949 has provisions that are expected to be in effect many years. The four year period, 1950 through 1953, is known as the adjustment period. The long time provisions of the Act take effect in 1954.

Hempstead county farmers are very much affected by acreage control and price supports of the farm program. Much of the act and its workings over the years as set out in the legislation passed by 80th Congress will be discussed by Mr. Atkinson.

Proposed changes in the 1950 cotton program and their present status will be given by Ury McKenzie of Shover Springs, president of the Hempstead county Farm Bureau.

All farmers are invited to Tuesday's meeting which is being held under the direction of Oliver L. Adams, Hempstead county agent.

The latest example involves a bill to limit acreage cuts imposed on cotton growers. FEPC backers have delayed action on it, chiefly by time-consuming roll calls, in retaliation for southern opposition to FEPC.

The southerners are eager to see the cotton bill approved. Since it also has administration support, it probably will be — but possibly not before late tomorrow, if that. The FEPC bill is an important part of President Truman's civil rights program is bottled up in the house rules committee. Several efforts to get action despite the committee's opposition have failed.

The bill's backers have called for a bi-partisan drive to break the deadlock by signing a petition that would force a vote. Split Democratic forces have filed two of these petitions but a great many Republicans have refrained from signing either.

There appears little likelihood that the necessary 218 signatures will be obtained soon. If not enacted, FEPC may become a live issue in this year's congressional elections.

So far this year the house has acted on only one major bill, a measure for financial aid to Korea. It beat that by the slim margin of one vote, but the bill is likely to be revived.

The senate's performance record for the first four weeks of the 1950 session is somewhat better. It has passed a bill repealing federal taxes on oleomargarine, and a bill submitting an "equal rights" constitutional amendment to the states. The house passed the oleomargarine bill last year but has not yet acted on the equal rights proposal.

The senate will debate this week proposed constitutional amendments to change the method of electing the president.

Acheson to Try to Get U. S. Aid for Korea

By BARNEY LIVINGSTONE
Washington, Jan. 30 — (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson straps back to Capitol Hill today in an effort to get the house to change its mind about refusing further economic aid to Korea.

Under the critical eye of Republicans concerned over United States policy in Asia, the secretary was expected to take up the subject of economic assistance to both China and Korea in a public meeting with the house foreign affairs committee.

Both the aid programs will expire Feb. 15 unless congress extends them.

Acheson was expected in advance to be asked about reports current this week-end that Moscow is making heavy demands on Chinese Communist leaders now in the Russian capital.

The state department called these reports "inert" and said they appear to be generally in line with Acheson's statement that the Russian Reds are busily attaching parts of China to the Soviet Union. However, there was said to be rumor as well as fact involved.

In brief, the reports were to the effect:

That Russia is demanding control of several key Chinese ports. That the Chinese are being called on to supply labor forces to Russia.

That more grain is demanded for Russia from Manchuria.

And that the Russians are demanding the right to place their agents in Chinese industrial positions.

Rep. Judd (R-Minn) meanwhile demanded that Acheson get rid of state department officials handling Chinese policy. Judd said further that Acheson is depending on a "myth" in contending that Russian imperialism is an annexation in China would result in Chinese anger against the Soviet Union.

Man Kills Mother, Self and Leaves 4 Suicide Notes

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 30 —(AP)—A man who left four suicide notes killed his aged mother and himself in their home yesterday.
Luther House, 62 made his plans so carefully that he posted a note on the door saying: "Do not enter. Bring the law with you."
Those who entered home in Ellettsville, near here, found Mrs. Martha House, 87, beaten fatally with a hammer and House died of a shotgun wound.
Dr. Robert E. Lyons Jr., Monroe county coroner, said it was murder and suicide. He said the notes showed House suffering "a severe state of mental melancholy and a defeatist attitude."
One note said, "medicine won't do me any good. Mother can't get well from her broken hip."
House, a former road supervisor, had been ill for some time.
Lyons said House apparently had been dead since around 10 o'clock Sunday morning. It was mid-afternoon before relatives called at the home and found the note on the door.

The Hallecks' maid Stella, a fresh-faced, buxom female accustomed to take Thursday off. On this particular Thursday, Muriel Halleck began tidying her table late in the morning.
"I'm elected today," she told Alice Pine, "Brent's off somewhere and I do wish he wasn't. Not that I don't adore being with Rick. But I'm really in a very important part of my novel."
Alice hesitated. But this might be still another way to make herself useful. "Why not let me?"
"Muriel's eyes lighted. "Would you? I... Oh, no. I can't turn you into a baby sitter."
"Even if it's my own suggestion?"
"All right, darling," Muriel was manifestly grateful. I warn you, though, he's a cheerful little handful."
"So long as he's cheerful," Alice laughed.
Rick was. Perhaps Alice constituted a novelty. Perhaps too she was more resourceful than the phlegmatic Stella. In any case,

Reds Suddenly Lift Berlin Blockade

Berlin, Jan. 30 (AP)—The Russians dropped their "little blockade" tactics early today and allowed road traffic to flow normally from the west to Berlin for the first time in ten days.
Soviet guards, obviously acting on higher orders, passed all trucks through the frontier posts at Berlin and Hohenzollern, 100 miles to the west, with only perfunctory checks.
The Soviets did not give any reason for the armistice, just as they never gave any official reason for starting their highway heckling. It was assumed, however,

Sunday night by Mrs. McDuff's mother, Mrs. C. Deckard.

Charles Dana Gibson, Jr., and four fraternity brothers from H. S. T. C., Arkadelphia spent semester holidays here.

End of a Chapter

By Edwin Rutt Copyright 1950 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

The Story: Alice Pine, recently engaged as literary secretary to the popular writer Muriel Halleck, is aware of a strange tension between Muriel and her husband, Brent, an artist. Alice cannot understand why Brent seems discontented and truculent. One day, when Alice on an afternoon of plays golf at the club near the village of Tolliver, she meets Muriel's mayme, one of the local women. They see Brent from a distance and Mrs. Tremayne does not conceal the fact that she thinks Brent came back from the war with "some kind of a complex." She also reveals that Brent chums around with Chuck Wisner, whom she describes as "worthless." Thinking over the conversation later, Alice decides the less she knows of the private lives of the Hallecks the better. But she has found an interest in their adopted son, four-year-old Rick.

Thereafter, at Rick's vociferous behest, Alice took over on Thursday. On one of these excursions, they unexpectedly encountered Brent.

He was hunched over an easel, in a little cove about a mile from the house. His profile was toward Alice, his left eye squinted appreciatively at the canvas. His feet were invisible, as if force of concentration had driven them deep into the sand.

Alice half-turned, wondering if she could slip away unnoticed. But Rick spied Brent and moved in a rush, whooping enthusiastically.

Brent said, without looking up: "You act ready to fly."

DOROTHY DIX

Invasion Of Privacy

Dear Miss Dix: My wife insists that I have no right to open letters addressed to her and read her mail. I keep no secrets from her, but she insists that her correspondence with her mother be a secret letter affair, and that I have no right to read her mother's letters. I let her read all my letters if she cares to do so, and I contend that I have a right to expect the same privilege from her. Who is right? If she is right, I think I shall retaliate by also having secret affairs.

H. A. Z.

Answer: Well, as long as you confine your secret correspondence to your mother; as your wife does hers, I don't suppose she will rise early in the morning in order to steam your letters open and read them before you do.

Wife Has Reasons

There are reasons why a woman might not care to have her husband read all of her mother's letters. In them family matters might be discussed with which the husband has no concern. Wherefore wife, protect mother and to save a family spat, refers to keep mother's letters to herself, wisely considering that they are purely personal and intended only for her own eyes.

And in this she is right, and a man must indeed be narrow-minded and eaten up with jealousy, and moreover consider a wife nothing but a chattel that he owns body and soul, to make an issue of reading his mother-in-law's letters. Most men are glad to be bored with family correspondence, which is dull enough to any outsider.

Anyway, the privilege of opening one's own letters is an inalienable right that extends from the cradle to the gates of the penitentiary, and neither parents nor husbands and wives have any right to interfere with it. Why having our letters opened is such an insult to our dignity, such an inalienable invasion of our own privacy, none of us can definitely explain but we all feel the same way about it. There is no offense that can be committed against us that we resent so bitterly.

Indecent prying, family curiosity, can go no further than in opening the letters of the other members of the family.

Dear Miss Dix: For the last four years I have been engaged to a young man. I have given up good times and have scrimped and saved so that we could be married, and now when we are all set and have a good start and our wedding day announced my fiance says he doesn't want to take upon himself the responsibility of marriage for a couple of years yet. He has a good job and we could easily get along and I want a home of my own. He won't save and I am tired of waiting. Isn't there anything I can do to encourage those wedding bells a little?

ANXIOUS

Answer: Well, daughter, I think that unless a man is enthusiastic about ringing the wedding bells, a girl is mighty wise to leave them silent. You know how it is when one of these super-salesmen just simply forces you into buying against your will. It doesn't suit your taste and you don't want it, and are not ready to buy, but he or she talks you into taking it, and you hate it ever afterward and spend your time picking flaws in it and thinking what a fool you were to let yourself be outsmarted.

Well, that is just about what happens to a girl when she forces a man into marrying her before he is ready to settle down and before he wants to marry. A lot of girls do it. They cry and wheedle a chap into the place where it takes more courage and nerve than he has to call the wedding off. So he is led to the altar like a lamb to the slaughter, but once he gets past the altar he is a lamb no longer. He is a snapping, snarling dog that tugs at the rope his wife has tied him with until he breaks it.

So, if you are so anxious to marry that you can't wait any longer, hunt up a youth who is more marrying-minded than the one you are engaged to.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Another girl who works in this office wears a riding habit to work. The men tell her she is cute and when she is gone they make fun of her for wearing it around the office. She wants me to wear one, but I don't think it is the proper costume. What do you think?

Answer: Well, you needn't be in doubt about a riding habit being the proper garment to wear to work in an office. Any girl who does that makes herself a figure of fun and laughing stock for all who see her, and I can't understand why her employer permits her to do such a silly thing.

Rocks May Be Valuable in Future

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer
(For James Marlow)

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—You might leave a note in a time capsule for your descendants 2,000 years hence advising them to save all the rocks in their backyards.

The rocks might bring them some spending money — and help the nation maintain its atomic energy program as well by furnishing new sources of uranium and thorium.

A Washington scientist estimates that if certain possibilities work out, the known deposits of uranium and thorium in the earth's crust would be sufficient to supply the world's atomic energy needs for "at least one or two thousand years."

But the scientists, Dr. George Gamow of George Washington university, says that if all these deposits are used up and no new ones should be found, "future generations will still always be able to obtain nuclear energy from ordinary rocks."

Gamow makes these comments in a book "One, Two, Three, Infinity" (Viking), but it's a safe bet you wouldn't get to first base if you called up the atomic energy commission today and told them you had a lot of rocks you'd gladly sell.

Ordinary rocks contain only minute quantities of uranium and thorium. An intricate separation process is required that no doubt could be considered out of the question economically now.

But the folks living in the year 4000 A. D. or thereabouts may cash in.

Gamow estimated that ordinary granite rocks contain four grams of uranium and 12 grams of thorium per ton.

"At first glance," he writes, "it looks like very little, but let us perform the following calculation: 'We know that one kilogram (1000 grams) of fissionable material contains an amount of nuclear energy equivalent to 20,000 tons of TNT if it is exploded (as in the atomic bomb) or about 20,000 tons of gasoline if used as a fuel.'"

"Thus the 16 grams of uranium and thorium contained in one ton of granite rock, if turned into fissionable material, would be equivalent to 320 tons of ordinary fuel."

That is enough to repay us for all the complicated trouble of separation — especially if we found that we were nearing the end of our supply of richer deposits of ore."

Here's Gamow's version of how known deposits of uranium and thorium might be made to last at least 1,000 or 2,000 years:

Estimates have been made, he says, that the total amount of fissionable uranium-235 in deposits of uranium ores known as of 1947 would supply the nuclear energy needs of world industry for "several years."

But uranium-238 with which fissionable U-235 is found in nature, is 140 times more plentiful than U-235. This U-238 is not of itself an atomic material but it can be converted into another material, called plutonium, which is.

If all of this U-238 could be converted in a practical way (presumably by the still-theoretical process of "breeding"), the time estimate of supply would needs would be extended "to several centuries."

Also, the element thorium — four times as plentiful as uranium ore in nature — can theoretically be converted to another fissionable material.

If all the thorium deposits in the earth could be so utilized, says Gamow, "we bring our estimate further up to at least one or two thousand years."

AAU Ousts 2 Minute Rule for Tourney

Little Rock, Jan. 30 (AP)—The Arkansas AAU has decided to do away with the controversial rule covering play in the final two minutes of a basketball game.

The organization's basketball committee yesterday set up changes for the state basketball tournaments which will get underway next month. The new procedure provides:

If an offensive player is fouled in the final two minutes of a game two free throws will be awarded. They must be taken. The ball will remain in play on the second shot.

If a defensive player is fouled, one free throw will be awarded. It must be taken and the ball will remain in play.

The current rule says that the team making free throw can keep possession of the ball.

The AAU selected the following sites and dates for various state tourneys:

Boxing — Open and novice divisions Little Rock, March 15-16. Finals, March 20. Special weights in Little Rock March 31-April 1.

Men's basketball — a total of 15 district eliminations for independent teams. State meet Little Rock March 4-8, including district representatives and college teams.

Girls' basketball — high school division at Little Rock Feb. 5-10. 4-12 team bracket already has been filed. Dates for independent tourney still in doubt.

Swimming and diving — indoor at the Little Rock Boys Club April 15. Outdoor at Fair Park pool, Little Rock, Aug. 9-9.

Wrestling — Regular weights at El Dorado March 31-April 1. Special weights Little Rock April 14-15. Track—Decision postponed.

TO MY FRIENDS

In Hope and Hempstead County

Several months ago I seriously considered entering this year's political race as a candidate for County Treasurer. Since that time I have been awarded the position as Manager of the Hope Water & Light Plant — a position that I truly appreciate and one that places me in a position to be of service to the citizens of this city and county.

This is to notify you that I will not be a candidate in the coming election, however I greatly appreciate the encouragement and help that was offered me while I was considering the possibility of becoming a candidate.

Weather Delays Attempt at Speed Record

Winslow, Ariz., Jan. 30 (AP)—

Bad weather forced Pilot Paul Mantz to abandon an attempt yesterday to set a new East-West transcontinental speed record.

Headwind shad so delayed his plane by the time he reached the Mississippi river yesterday afternoon that he landed for refueling at Amarillo, Tex. That landing was five hours and 43 minutes after his takeoff from New York International airport.

When he left Amarillo he intended to continue nonstop to Burbank, Calif. But his generator began overcharging, he explained on his arrival here, and the battery of his red converted P-51 fighter plane burned out.

His plane had to be towed off the runway. Airport mechanics went to work at once on the battery in an effort to build it up enough so Mantz could continue his flight to Burbank today.

Mantz holds the East-West speed record of seven hours and four seconds, set in 1947.

Wrestling — Regular weights at El Dorado March 31-April 1. Special weights Little Rock April 14-15. Track—Decision postponed.
